LL.M. In International & European law

The LL.M in International and European Law, specialised in Business Law, is a multilingual program: half of the courses are taught in English, allowing us to practice our legal English which is indispensable to pursue a career in business law. The teaching staff consists of academics and professionals which enables us to have both a theoretical and a practical view of the subjects taught. This way of teaching is strengthened by the internationality of our Visiting Professors: they use the same methods they are used in their country of origin, and, in the case of professionals, show us their practice which often differs from the French one. Another advantage of the LL.M is our involvement in an international arbitral competition, the VIS MOOT. Its aim is to defend our client in front of an Arbitral Tribunal, and it teaches us how to realise legal research, write memorials as well as plead in front of an audience. This reinforces our efficiency and our team working skills. The number of students in this LL.M being limited, it allows us to have a direct exchange with our Professors during our courses as well as during our professional life.
